Words on the plaque:

In memory and appreciation of Andrew Lagle. He,
with his interest in local history, tireless effort, and exceptional expertise, prepared the Davie County Land Grants Map - a work no one else could have done.

Andrew, with his wife Glenna, a Library volunteer, also made a major contribution in researching and compiling the Davie County Cemetery Records.

HUGH ANDREW LAGLE – 1922-2007

A significant chapter of Davie County and Mocksville history closed with the passing of Andrew Lagle. His many accomplishments included an avid love of local history and genealogy.

Chief among these was his documentation of first owners of property in what is present Davie County, The Lagle Land Grant Map. Five years of painstaking research with recorded deed descriptions of property and aerial photography of the county, aided by James W. Wall (County Historian) and Flossie Martin (deceased History Room Librarian) went into this endeavor.

This map has become a valuable tool for historians and genealogists. Public libraries across the United States have added this map to their collections, and individual researchers, including visitors to the Davie County Public Library and Internet inquiries, use this map. Copies are held in the History Room of the library and are readily available. Andrew Lagle not only contributed the land grant map but both he and his wife, Glenna Colette Lagle, were volunteers in the History Room.

For 30 years he worked with the Town of Mocksville, first as Town Supervisor, then Director of Public Works. He was a volunteer firefighter for 35 years, serving as Fire Chief for 15 years. Prior to that, after graduating from Mocksville High School and the Curtis Wright School of Aviation, he then joined the U.S. Army Air Corps as a flight engineer and served during World War II.

Andrew Lagle was a vital part of Mocksville and Davie County and we all are grateful for his valuable work.
